

Grants Program - Business Analysis & Solution Architecture

In May/June 2005 Ross Human Directions conducted a Business Analysis of a small grants program administered by Defence.

The Program is currently accessed through a website portal and information and documentation in support of the grants application, approval, administration and necessary reporting is managed on paper supported by a management database.

Changes in Defence IT requirements have necessitated re-siting the website and database in the Defence IT environment and placing greater control on information entering this environment from the public environment. These requirements have provided an opportunity to review the business processes involved in the provision of these grants and to advise on a revised System Architecture capable of meeting the Defence IT requirement and streamlining the business workflow whilst optimising client access from the internet environment.

Ross Human Directions has worked with the client's staff to deliver a Business Analysis, a proposed Solution Architecture and a recommended Next Stage Plan which provides the basis for the building and implementing of a new IT system in support of the grants process.
